

LIZ O'BRIEN

New York

JOE HOGAN

Large Gorse and Bog Pine Pouch

Woven basket in salix rubra and wood of scots.

Irish, 2025

Measurements

24.5"H x 39.25"W x 24.5"D

Reference #LargeGorseandBogPine

LIZ O'BRIEN

New York

I now look to nature for instruction and ideas. Thus I find myself looking at lichen covered twigs or at three thousand year old bog pine uncovered in the digging of peat and wonder how I can incorporate them into my baskets. In the same way tree holes, oddly shaped branches, bark which has healed after a wound awaken in me a desire to appreciate the ever-changing phenomena before us. The poet Mary Oliver asks "how can we ever stop looking" but of course we do stop looking; we stop being amazed and appreciative and so in my making I am interested in deepening my own looking and hopefully perhaps, that of others also.

- Joe Hogan, Learning From The Earth, 2018